HOPE MAN KILLED IN BLAST

Official Canvass of Primary Vote Begun Over State

McDonald, Trailing Bailey
2,500 Votes, Refuses to Concede It

COURT RACE CLOSE

Hempstead Committee
Meets at Hope City Hall
1 p. m. Friday

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—As the county Democratic committee met Friday to officially canvass the returns from Tuesday's primary in which nearly complete but unofficial tabulations showed Attorney General Carl E. Bailey the apparent gubernatorial winner by a margin of about 2,500 votes, Secretary of State Ed McDonald, in second place on the unofficial tabulation, said he expected the final official totals would give him the nomination.

McDonald said he would abide by the official certification and would be among the first to congratulate Bailey on his victory if it was finally determined that the attorney general was the winner.

Judge R. A. Cook's campaign manager said Cook turned down suggestions that he ask a recount in the vote for governor.

McDonald said he expected the final official vote count to give him a 1,200 to 2,000 vote lead over his nearest opponent.

The definite outcome of the governor and chief justice races hinges on the results to be certified by the county committees all over the state.

Bailey Elected
LITTLE ROCK—The next governor of Arkansas will be Carl Edward Bailey, present attorney general.

With only 28 precincts in the state unreported Thursday night, he had a lead of 2,377 votes over his nearest competitor, Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald.

It is considered doubtful if the missing precincts total as many as 2,000 votes even if McDonald should receive them all.

The vote:
Bailey 71,607
McDonald 72,030
R. A. Cook 60,935
Tom Terral 23,628
Howard Reed 4,455
The total vote tabulated amounted to 235,553 votes.

Smith Seems to Have Won
Although the machine-controlled counties of the state had given suspiciously large majorities against him, State Comptroller Griffin Smith was holding tightly to his lead in the bitter contest for the nomination for chief justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court and all indications pointed to victory for him. With only 64 precincts unreported, he had a lead of 523 votes over incumbent C. E. Johnson, who generally is credited with being Governor Futrell's most trusted political advisor.

The vote:
Smith 113,188
Johnson 112,665
Despite Smith's slender majority, he was considered in a most advantageous position because of the fact that only two townships of Sharp county had reported in the contest for the chief justiceship. While these two townships gave Johnson 127 votes to 110 for Smith, the general belief was that Smith had carried the county by a heavy majority. This belief was strengthened by the fact that Bailey carried the county in the governor's race and he and Smith were coupled in the minds of the voters as anti-administration candidates.

Hempstead Vote Being Canvassed Here Friday

The Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee met at Hope city hall at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon to canvass Tuesday's primary vote. The canvass is expected to require all afternoon for completion. Official returns from all counties will be telegraphed to Little Rock immediately on completion for a final state-wide count on the races for governor and chief justice.

Because of names being left on the ballot in instances where candidates had already withdrawn, there is a considerable difference between the total votes cast in the various races.

The Star's complete unofficial tabulation shows the total vote for senator to be 3,719; for governor 3,607; and for chief justice 3,770—but the highest vote was cast in the local county race for circuit clerk, which totaled 3,818.

Hermitage Lumber Plant Destroyed

Loss of $25,000 Reported by Fire 15 Miles South of Warren

WARREN, Ark.—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin during the night destroyed the Anthony Payne Lumber company plant at Hermitage, 15 miles south of here, causing a loss estimated Friday at $25,000.

The fire, first breaking out in the fuel room, went through the sawmill, planer mill, lumber shed, and three loaded cars on a railroad siding.

The lumber yard was saved, but Manager O. L. Payne said the other loss was total, and that there was no insurance.

Series of Forest Festivals Planned

13 to Be Held in This Area
From August 17 to September 5

LITTLE ROCK—A series of Forestry Festivals was announced Friday by David Campbell, Assistant Forester in charge of Public Relations for the State Forestry Commission. Thirteen Festivals, sponsored by the Volunteer Forest Fire Guards of the state, will be held in the areas in the state in which the forests are under protection by the State Forestry Commission.

The festivals will consist of a program of games and competitions during the afternoon, a picnic supper at 5:30 p. m. and an evening spent in singing, entertainment features, talks by one or two people prominent in forestry work or conservation, and a picture show of forestry films.

Although the festivals will be sponsored by the Volunteer Forest Guards the general public is invited to attend them and join in the festivities. Refreshments will be on sale at each festival but visitors should bring a picnic supper.

Mr. H. N. Wheeler, the foremost lecturer on forestry in the country, has been kindly assigned to the festivals by the United States Forest Service at Washington, D. C., and his talks will be one of the features of the evening programs.

An orchestra from the CCC camp at Ashdown will play at each picnic and additional music will be supplied by local quartets, and string bands. The contest will consist of sawing and chopping contests, races, and such competitions as hog calling and horn blowing.

The complete schedule of festivals is as follows:
Monday, August 17—Dierks.
Tuesday, August 18—Ashdown.
Wednesday, August 19—Magnolia.
Thursday, August 20—Arkadelphia.
Friday, August 21—Malvern.
Monday, August 24—Sheridan.
Tuesday, August 25—Warren.
Wednesday, August 26—Fordyce.
Thursday, August 27—Hamburg.
Friday, August 28—El Dorado.
Tuesday, September 1—Hardy.
Thursday, September 3—Harrison.
Saturday, September 5—Midland.

The Unit 10 Festival will be held at the Little River Bridge, 8 miles north of Ashdown.

The average man shaves 20 square miles of face during his lifetime.

Forest Festival for Stamps to Be Held Wednesday

Program to Begin at 2 o'Clock on Banks of the Mill Pond

RUN THROUGH NIGHT

Big Public Celebration
Scheduled at Stamps
on August 19

John F. Glass, District Forest Ranger of Unit Nine, announced Friday for the Arkansas State Forestry Commission that a Forestry Festival would be held Wednesday, August 19, sponsored by the Volunteer Forest Guards of Unit Nine, on the banks of Lake Judge (Stamps Mill Pond) at Stamps.

Beginning at 2 o'clock p. m. the program will consist of games and contests during the afternoon. All attending are urged to enter in one of the games and contests, as prizes will be given to the first and second place winners at the night program. A picnic supper at 5:30 p. m. and a night of band music, singing, short talks and a free moving picture show.

Although the festival is being sponsored by the Volunteer Forest Guards all people residing in Nevada, Ouchita, Hempstead, Lafayette and Columbia counties are invited to join in the festivities. Bring a picnic supper, as a place will be provided for you to eat either as a family group or in a larger group. An orchestra will be furnished by the CCC camp of Ashdown and will play during the supper hour.

The Program
The following program has been planned:
2—Opening by R. H. Davis, President of the Stamps Rotary club.
2:15—Sawing contest.
2:30—Horse shoe pitching contest.
2:45—Chopping contest.

There will be plenty of seats and drinking water for every one. The seats have been arranged under a grove of trees where it will be cool and comfortable.

Bailey to Choose Civil Service Body

His Action to Follow Certification to Governorship

LITTLE ROCK—Official certification by county Democratic committees Friday of primary returns showing Attorney General Carl E. Bailey as the nominee for governor will be followed within 48 hours by appointment of an unofficial commission to study civil service laws and regulations in other states.

This announcement was made Thursday by Mr. Bailey as he rested at his home after having studied the Associated Press tabulation of the vote in the governor's race. He said his lead was sufficient to assure his nomination with so few votes still to be accounted for.

No hint as to the personnel of the commission was given by Mr. Bailey but he said it would be composed of men of unquestioned ability who will be willing to devote much of their time during the next few months to preparing recommendations for submission before the legislature convenes in January.

Mr. Bailey did not refer to the assessment of statehouse employees for campaign purposes, which was the issue that precipitated his pledge to designate an honorary group to assist in preparation of civil service legislation for state employees.

The attorney general is hopeful that the commission will complete a report in ample time for it to be sent to all members of the legislature so they may be familiar with it when they come here for the opening of their session.

Among the students of Boston university, 73 nations are represented.

The gale of laughter that you see in the picture happened like this: On the journey of The Star's camera to Blevins last week to photograph the political war the cameraman lived up these six youngsters. Warned by experience that his subjects are likely to "freeze up" when they know the picture is about to be taken, the cameraman first made a fake "snap." The youngsters, thinking it was all over, bent double with laughter—and then, just as they bounced back into position, the cameraman "fired"; and this time he wasn't fooling!

Soil Projects Are Visited by 49,000

Keen Interest Is Shown by Public During the Last 12 Months

FORT WORTH, Texas.—Nearly 49,000 farmers, business men and agricultural leaders visited Soil Conservation Service demonstration projects and ECW camps in Region 4 during the past 12 months, according to a statement on the program of field activities issued here Friday by Louis P. Merrill, Regional Conservator.

For the most part the visitors to the 20 project demonstrations and 57 soil conservation camps consisted of groups of farmers and land owners who were interested in seeing the complete coordinated erosion program of the service as applied on the farms of co-operating farmers. Recent surveys throughout Louisiana, Arkansas, and Texas indicate that a high percentage of the total number of visitors returned to their homes after seeing and having the complete erosion control program explained to them and instituted similar programs on their own farms.

Other statistical information regarding the field program of the Region 4 Soil Conservation Service follows:
Number of farms under agreement 4,473.
Acres under agreement 673,242.6.
Number of Soil Conservation Association members 10,101.
Number of visitors to project and camp areas 48,741.
Acres retired from cultivation 18,937.1.
Acres of pastures sodded 43,118.9.
Miles of contour ridges and furrows 29,188.
Acres protected by strip crops alone 33,379.9.
Acres protected by combination of strip crops and terraces 88,427.3.
Miles of terraces constructed 5,875.6.
Drainage area of terrace outlets protected 121,283.3.
Square yards of terrace outlets added 1,509,091.
Acres of meadow strip terrace outlets established 974.4.
Acres of timber stand improved 2,035.
Acres of woodland planted 6,335.1.
Number of trees planted 10,911,650.

Water Situation

JOHNSTOWN, Pa.—(AP)—President Roosevelt promised Johnstown citizens Thursday night the federal government would co-operate to the utmost to prevent recurrence of floods which poured through the city last March.

Leaving his special train for the first time on his personal tour of flood areas in Pennsylvania and New York, the chief executive rode through the downtown section of the city where flood waters caused damage estimated at $28,000,000 last St. Patrick's Day.

Crowds lined the route to the city limits as the president was taken to the site of a proposed dam on Stony creek which army engineers assert would help remove the menace of floods from Johnstown.

A large crowd heard Mayor Daniel J. Shields introduce the president and cheered the executive's pledge of federal co-operation in the fight against future floods.

1,000 Militiamen Killed by Rebels

Report of Spanish Massacre Comes From Capital of Portugal

LIBSON, Portugal.—(AP)—More than 1,000 Spanish government militiamen, including 100 women, died in a mass execution by rebel forces at Almeria, drakele, the correspondent of the newspaper Diario Noticias reported Friday.

Libson heard that the Spanish city of Badajoz is in flames.

Desperate Federal Drive

MADRID, Spain.—(AP)—The Socialist government of Spain Thursday night threw every force at its command against the Fascist insurrection in an effort to end the civil war.

By land in the south, in the air toward San Sebastian to aid loyalists there, and into the Gibraltar Straits with warships, the government ordered its greatest offensive.

The revolt, loyalists proclaimed, must be stamped out "within a few hours."

Outside Northern Oviedo, the Socialist fighters hurled heavy artillery fire in an effort to recapture that munitions center from Fascist rebels.

Men and women fought side by side with antiquated rifles and ancient cannon to hold San Sebastian and Irun, the northern strip of greatest importance because of its command of the Bay of Biscay.

An air armada speeded to the attack on Seville, key city of the south held by Fascists since the rebellion began more than three weeks ago, and to neighboring Cordoba and Badajoz.

Government warships again bombarded Algeiras.

Capture of four small towns near Cordoba was announced by Madrid. The War Ministry also dismissed Major Ramon Franco, air attaché at the Spanish embassy in Washington and a brother of rebel commander Francisco Franco.

(Rebel infantry pushed to within eight miles of San Sebastian, before which it fled Thursday in face of a surprise offensive by volunteer militia. Reinforcements were on the way and occupied Oyarzun.)

(The main Fascist Army concentrated at Villabona, 12 miles distance from the San Sebastian front.)

(In the extreme south, rebels marched on Estepuna, 41 miles southwest of Malaga. Two thousand rebels were expected to reinforce Algeiras.)

The government asserted a decisive battle at Estremadura, in its effort to force an opening from the capital to the Portuguese frontier, was expected hourly.

Raymond Newman Fatally Burned in Welding Gas Tank

Fumes From Storage Tank at Fulton Ignited by His Torch

IS HURLED 30 FEET

Blast Starts Fire That for a Time Threatens Town of Fulton

Hurled 30 feet into the air by a terrific explosion at Fulton late Thursday afternoon, Raymond Newman, 27, of Hope, died several hours later of burns in Julia Chester hospital here. He was conscious until a few moments before death.

Two other persons, Roy and Kenneth Cox of Fulton, were injured. Their condition is not serious.

Newman, welder for the Arkansas Machine Specialty company of Hope, was repairing a 200-gallon kerosene storage tank at the W. E. Cox service station when fumes ignited from a torch.

Newman, hurled into the air, came down with his clothes afire, landing in the burning fuel which had spread over the ground.

First persons to reach him said that Newman groaned and mumbled: "I'm good as dead, but take that knife out of my pocket and cut my clothes off—I'm burning up."

Charles Roland, who lives about 800 yards from the tank, was the first to reach Newman.

Roland placed the injured man in an automobile and brought him to Hope. An ambulance, leaving Hope Furniture company when the call came in, reached Fulton 11 minutes later. But the injured man was already en route to Julia Chester hospital.

A light truck driven to Fulton earlier in the day by Newman was destroyed in the flames. The truck was parked near the scene of the explosion.

Fire Is Threatening
The blast caused much excitement at Fulton. Due to dry weather, the fire hazard was great. Fire departments of Hope and Texarkana were called and succeeded in bringing the blaze under control.

Fighting the fire was risky work, as two gasoline tanks were alongside the burning tank. One of the gasoline tanks held 12,000 gallons and the other 1,000 gallons. However, the fire was extinguished without any further explosion.

The three tanks, used for storage purposes by W. E. Cox & Son, operator of a filling station, were in the open, near the Fulton railroad station.

The only buildings endangered by the explosion and fire were the railroad station and the residence of R. A. Turner. Both were given protection.

Roy and Kenneth Cox, who were injured in the blast, were standing near the tank where Newman was engaged in repairing a leak.

A Near Tragedy
Roy Cox is blind. He and Kenneth were blown back several feet. The blind man, who was burned about the neck, started to run directly into the flames.

His younger relative caught him and struggled with him to safety.

Newman had been employed by Arkansas Machine Specialty company about seven years. He came here from Okmulgee, Okla., soon after the specialty shop was established.

Newman's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Newman of Okmulgee, arrived in Hope early Friday morning. Two brothers, Harvey and Jack Newman of Okmulgee, also came here. Besides his parents and two brothers, Newman is survived by a sister, Miss Anna Mae Newman of California.

Funeral services were to be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday from First Presbyterian church. A Prescott minister was to be in charge of the services.

The body will be taken overland to Okmulgee for burial there Saturday. Pallbearers will be: William Briant, F. D. Henry, T. L. McDonald, Ray Rice, Ernest Graham, Lawrence Martin, Louie Carlson, J. E. Sandlin, Richard Reich, Oland Lewis, Lyman Armstrong and Ernest O'Neal.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

You can catch cold in summer as easily as you can in winter, so it is well to remember that the best thing you can do for a cold is to go right to bed.

Then you should try to restore normal action of the bowels, drink alkaline drinks, and thus help nature to develop the necessary reactions that will bring about recovery.

Recently some Cincinnati physicians decided to test scientifically the actual value of rest in bed in hastening recovery from the common cold. They wanted to find out whether people who went to bed promptly got well quicker, and also whether they had more or fewer complications from the common cold than did those who did not go to bed promptly.

As experimental subjects, the doctors chose nurses, because the girls could be kept under the same living conditions and given the same kind of food, and also would be under adequate control during the period of the investigation.

You should realize, of course, that the danger from a common cold arises primarily from the complications, rather than from the cold itself.

The complications most prominent are infections of the sinuses, nose, and ears, abscesses of the tonsils, bronchitis and pneumonia.

Using these complications as a test, the doctors discovered that 11.3 per cent of the patients who went to bed promptly, when they caught a cold, developed complications, as against 67.4 per cent of those who delayed going to bed until the cold was fully developed.

There would seem, from these figures, to be no question that early resort to bed is of great value in minimizing severity of the common cold, and in reducing the number of complications.

To test the severity of a cold, careful records were kept of the time that elapsed between the onset of the cold and the patient's arrival at the hospital, the number of days spent in the hospital, the patients with fever, the duration of the illness, and the loss in weight.

In general, all the figures slightly favored those who went to bed promptly, although the differences in some cases were so small as to be considered insignificant.

It must be borne in mind that complications, which occur five times as frequently in those who do not go to bed as in those who do, may be largely responsible for the duration of disability resulting from the cold.

There are, of course, many people who do not go to bed at all, but who work right through an attack of the common cold. No doubt a comparison of persons who go directly to bed with those who do not go to bed at all, when afflicted with a common cold would be greatly in favor of the restful group.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

The weakness of old methods in teaching lay chiefly in the first grade. Children got off to a bad start and some of them never understood the why and wherefore until they stepped out of elementary school eight years later, if they stepped out at all.

Now, it is encouraging to note that new ideas have centered around the first year in school.

In her new book called "A Day at School" (Dutton), Agnes McCready, teacher and supervisor of a well-known progressive school, has made a splendid attempt to show parents, by context and photographs, just what it's all about.

And it is about plenty.

The little fellows and girls are shown doing every sort of developing activity related to things they already know. They carry it a bit further, however, and learn responsibility toward pets, other people and themselves. They construct objects in sand and clay, paint, and learn to read clocks and thermometers, as well as charts; cook in a small way; learn cleanliness and order, and so on.

Not Universally Followed Yet

Everything is done for a definite reason and toward a definite end.

Now, except in occasional cases, it is not possible for the average public school to handle its beginners thus. But in general, most of the first grades of our big cities are working along such progressive lines, and have adopted the more practical of the ideas. In short, our first grades are entirely different from the routine of a decade ago.

I have always felt that the old way of catapulting the child from home life into one of almost military precision, strange surroundings and the world of pencil and books was a shock. It paralyzed his confidence and set up inward rebellion and unhappiness. The ensuing obsession against all school life that followed was not due to anything half so much as the early distaste set in his first two months.

Every child needs "regimentation." To conform is good for him. To learn the lessons of a stoical environment is absolutely necessary if he is to be worth his salt.

And if it were not for the effects of pitching him headlong, just past babyhood, into a life that his whole being is unready for, I would think the old system the best.

And for this same reason, I am heartily glad that things are changing.

My criticism of the too-radically "experimental" or progressive school, has been (and still is) that instead of withdrawing the formative plays and privileges gradually after they have served their purpose in the first year, they are continued into later grades to a harmful degree. Self-development is one thing, but conformity to strict rules is another. If overdone, the first rule can soften, and lose sight of the world MUST. All life consists of doing that which we dislike. This is as much a part of training as anything else.

However, we are getting there. New school ideas are re-vamping their patterns, old ones shortening their horns. Transitions from early to later grades take into account these very things I speak of.

The beginner has a bright day ahead, at any rate, and dawn is here.

State Champions Nose Out Hope in Game Played at Camden

The Southern Kraftsmen of Camden, state sandlot champions for the second consecutive year, defeated the Williams Lumber company baseball team at Cullendale park Thursday afternoon, 5 to 2.

Hope errors aided Camden. A freak play occurred in the fifth inning when Jim Perry of Camden scored on a pop fly that should have been caught easily.

Lumberjack players threw the ball wild to two bases and Perry, starting from home plate, circled the bases on the play.

Carroll Schooley, with three out of four including two doubles, led the Lumberjack hitting attack.

Schooley hurled the last two innings after Womble retired because of a blister on his hand.

Lampkin led Camden in hitting, getting a single and a triple.

Manager Lloyd Coop announced Friday that the Lumberjacks would meet Texarkana at Fair Park Sunday afternoon.

more than his share. The matter of years ought not to weigh too heavily against Sharkey, for Johnson points out that, at 33, Sharkey's present age, he himself was in the very prime of his fighting life.

A fair enough argument except for the fact that Sharkey is not, and never has been, a Jack Johnson in the ring. Sharkey rates high as a boxer among the big fellows, but there never has been a heavyweight who could match Johnson for sheer skill in the art of self-defense. Few scars mark his face for all the long ring campaigns he entered... ample testimony that seldom did his opponents manage to break through his defense.

Sharkey Has A Left, Too

Johnson views Joe's chances of scoring over the experienced Sharkey as mighty slim because he feels that, in addition to being called on to face a fair right-handed puncher in his initial comeback venture, Louis will be meeting a man with a fine left hook as well. Sharkey picks plenty of power in his right despite his lack of reputation as a knockout-artist—but it is his left hand that is really educated in ring cunning.

The sailor's left is likely to win for him, for Louis will be so busy thinking about his newly-acquired defense

John was impressed by the apparent condition, speed and accurate punching of Sharkey. But those are not the only reasons the former heavyweight champion is Johnson's choice. More than Sharkey's prowess, it is Louis' apparent failure to correct the faults which proved fatal in his contest with Schmeling.

Johnson refuses to believe that Louis has, in a few weeks, ironed out such serious faults as his improper stance—the style of fighting which made him an easy mark for a right-handed puncher. Under pressure, after taking a hard punch or two, Louis is likely to forget his newly-acquired form and revert to his natural fighting ways—just as any young fighter of limited experience can be expected to do under such circumstances.

Says Experience Will Tell

Old box experience will again beat Joe Louis, Johnson insists. When it comes to experience, Jack Sharkey has

Local Mat Show to Be Guaranteed

Wrestlers Must "Produce" or Admission Price Will Be Refunded

Professional wrestlers must "produce" here Friday night or paying customers will be refunded their money. Promoter Bert Maullin said in announcing the weekly mat event.

Maullin became vexed over the performance here last week of Jack (Sailor) Moran who appeared in the main event. Moran brought the show to a quick ending with punches below the belt.

Frankie Hill is returning for Friday night's show. Hill needs an introduction, having appeared here many times. He is a fast, aggressive wrestler and is popular here.

Hill meets Jack Curtis of Vick, Miss. Curtis is a new comer, won over Moran at Little Rock week when Moran was disgruntled. Jack Savich meets Jimmy ridge in the 45-minute semi. Both have exchanged holds here before.

The show starts at 8:15.

IT TAKES Precise Control

To Sink a 12-foot Putt...or to give you the matchless flavor of Schlitz

PEOPLE say, "There's something about SCHLITZ that makes it extra good." They're right. It's PRECISE ENZYME CONTROL.

Nature puts enzymes in grains, fruits and vegetables. They are the invisible "ripeners." They start working by themselves... but they don't stop by themselves. Hence they often cause over-ripeness.

SCHLITZ controls enzyme action—stops it at the peak of mellow-ripe perfection. That's why SCHLITZ Beer is always uniform—always delicious, wholesome and digestible.

The Beer with Sunshine Vitamin D

Beer is good for you... but SCHLITZ, the beer with SUNSHINE VITAMIN D*, is extra good for you. The same old-time SCHLITZ flavor and bouquet—with new health benefits—and at no increase in price. Cools... relaxes... invigorates—gives you more lasting benefits. Drink SCHLITZ each day for health with enjoyment.

Dry Season

The sun had turned an angry glare on all things they planted there in field and garden. Earth cracked wide—

To show drought burrowing inside. Have hung on edges of the sky. Like dusty smoke. Hot winds moped by.

And when the hoped-for rain began. It was a spiritless shower than run down things dust-coated many weeks. Like slow tears causing grimy cheeks. Of some small boy who fought and lost.

They could not reckon all the cost. In shivered grain and shortened hay. It seemed the drought would burn away.

The very courage that had made them laugh when many were afraid. He kept at work, a make-believe. Of needed things. She could retrieve a smile for him. She never cried until her two geraniums died—

But that night at the kitchen door. He heard her singing as before. —Selected.

Virgin Islands a Liability to U. S.

Government Has Always Had to Contribute Money to Keep Islands Up

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—The difficulty encountered in selecting judges for the Virgin Islands has thrown the publicity spotlight periodically upon them to a degree encouraging to some residents hoping to make them an offshore paradise for tired American vacationists.

Boyd Brown, president of the Virgin Islands company, a federally-financed organization designed to put the island residents again on their feet, told friends in Washington that already some private capital was buying in on the prospects the place might become a vacation spot rivaling the British Bahamas.

Others concerned with the island's fate estimated it may be a long job to make of them an Atlantic Catalina, but islands worth trying.

The islands' colorful spots in their history which the interior department is capitalizing upon in its promotional literature. For years they were a pirate haven, then were dotted with sugar baronies with accompanying rich habitations. The recent history of the islands, however, has been somewhat forlorn.

They were sort of "war babies." Denmark had owned them for 250 years when the United States decided to buy them in 1917 for $25,000,000 in representations from the Danish government that it was uncertain it could prevent them becoming German submarine bases. Years before, a deal for the United States to buy them for $25,000,000 failed only by a narrow margin. Interior department officials call it another excited buy.

Since 1900 they have had ups and downs, mostly the latter, until when President Hoover visited them in 1931 he said the United States had merely acquired an island "poor house."

Those were almost fighting words to the residents, a large percentage of whom are of negro extraction, but interior department officials say it acted also as a challenge for the islanders to do better.

Upkeep Costs Millions
Ever since their purchase, congress has had to appropriate about $250,000 a year to help finance the insular government. Since the interior department took them over from the navy about five years ago, nearly $2,500,000 has been spent there, resettling landless tenants, rescuing cane land from the jungle and improving health conditions.

The aim is to make them self-supporting by reviving the sugar industry and rum business, and by stimulating tourists and vacationist trade.

Situated off the far end of Cuba, they have about 22,000 population, all but 2,000 of it negro or mixed blood. It was an experience to hear some of the negro island residents, at a senate hearing, speak with a guttural Danish accent, in such sharp contrast to southern negro dialects.

There is no independence move in the islands. That, evidently, is further from their thoughts.

SOWING AND REAPING

Golden Text: Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.—Galatians 6:7.

Many practical problems faced the Christians in the pagan communities in which they lived. Different Christians met the problems in different ways. Some thought it was wrong to eat meat that had been offered to idols; others did not feel that offering it to the idols affected the meat, and they ate with good conscience.

In the midst of such problems men were apt to judge one another, not always with graciousness and understanding. Even those had their faults who had become Christian under conditions where one would think that to do so would imply almost perfection of life.

In the church at Galatia, some, apparently, were censorious and unsympathetic. Possibly there was some warrant for their critical mien, but Paul very definitely stated what the Christian attitude ought to be.

If a man has been overtaken in a fault, others should manifest their own goodness by restoring him in a spirit of gentleness, remembering that they themselves may be subject to temptation. To bear one another's burdens is to fulfill the law of Christ. Pride and self-will are sources of self-deception.

There is an apparent conflict in Paul's statement here, because, after saying that we should bear one another's burdens, he is equally explicit in saying that each man shall bear his own burden.

Both statements are true. Every man must bear his own burden, but it often becomes intolerable if there is no mutual help in the bearing of burdens. And when, along with his burden, a man must bear the adverse judgments and unkindnesses of his fellow men, his load is far greater than it ought to be.

We are living, as Paul says, in a moral world where wrong-doing brings it on sequences. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." There is a great deal in life that seems to upset that idea, but history, as well as religious teaching, shows that it is true.

The Christian life is a life of well doing. Continuance in that life brings its reward. He who would live as a Christian must meet all men in a spirit of good will, and this spirit ought to be particularly manifest toward his fellow Christians.

Here is good, common sense, practical counsel for life. It applies to those

Rich and Reckless

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MOLLY MILFORD, rich and popular, has received proposals of marriage from three suitors, but "The Red Poppy," whom she loves, has not asked her to marry him.

MOLLY, Molly's stepmother, is only a few years older than Molly. Donna is anxious for her stepdaughter to marry.

Bored with a succession of parties, all alike, Molly asks Brent to take her to the Red Poppy, a questionable night club. He refuses. Molly is determined to go anyway, and sets out for the Red Poppy with WICK ROSS, another admirer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

GLITTERING signs winked familiarly at Molly as she rolled along in Wick's smart car. They made the mental visions she had conjured up seem unreal. In the darkness, she smiled a little. Brent was probably right when he called her a child. It had been silly to inveigle Wick into this adventure.

He had been nice to humor her, but "The Red Poppy" doubtless wouldn't measure up. Tomorrow she would have a headache and wish she had stayed at home.

Tomorrow she would be a good girl and try to feel grateful for her easy, protected life. She would go dutifully with Dad, lunch with Brent if he asked her, shop with Donna for the Florida trip she was planning. Donna was restless, too, lately.

"None of us is really living," Molly was thinking. "We are only being wheeled about by events, tossed around in a rosy cloud that hasn't any reality."

Wick's car had long since left familiar surroundings. Out here in the countryside, the wind had an eerie sound. It seemed spooky even with Wick beside her.

"A perfect place for a holdup," Wick spoke shortly.

"I've a funny feeling along my spine," Molly whispered. "As though dozens of people must have passed along this same road tonight."

"And some of them," Wick retorted, "aren't the kind of folks I'd like to meet along here."

"Don't worry. I left my jewelry at home."

"You don't read the newspapers. Holdups can be most unpleasant. Particularly if you've left your money and rings at home. Sometimes you get a nasty bump on the head or maybe a playful dig with a knife. But luck with us so far. That bright glow over there is the famous 'Red Poppy'."

As they came nearer, yellow squares of light from a long, low, clubby type building began to prick the darkness with color. Wick drove around the side where they found a motley assemblage of automobiles. Some were rather swank, Molly noticed. Others looked as though they were on their last legs.

There was nothing unusual about the place except the dense woodland around it and a sense of isolation. A queer place, if you wanted crowds. But maybe more thrilling things awaited inside. Frances had said this place was terrific. It must have points, to be revealed later.

"Here's our cheerful choice," Wick murmured. He helped Molly from the car. "Not too late to turn back," he added.

"When I wake up behind bars, I'll say 'Wick and Brent wanted me to be a good girl and I wouldn't.' Anyway, what could happen?"

And once he turned, and his eyes met hers steadily for a moment.

"Plenty . . . police."

"Police!" Molly spoke with the disdain of one who has known only the friendly protection of the guardians of the peace.

They were inside now, and a tall, suave-looking man came toward them, smiling. Molly felt his gaze rest on her for a moment with sudden, sharp interest.

"He knows I'm not a regular customer," she hazarded mentally, "and suspects I'm all set for something exciting."

The proprietor signaled to a waiter, who piloted them to a table.

Molly curved her mouth downward to signify to Wick her disappointment. Wick had been stuffy, deliberately building up an atmosphere which was about to collapse. There was absolutely nothing here to thrill or excite one.

The big room had the usual polished dance floor. A large revolving mirrored disc in the center of the ceiling bathed the dancing area in a flood of shifting rainbow squares. Mirror panels were set in the walls between other panels decorated with vivid poppies.

The crowd had not yet come to life. People were sitting at tables indifferently, looking at a quite ordinary show with bored eyes. Perhaps after a while that girl with hair like green straw would be crying in her cup and that ugly man with her would flourish a knife—as Brent's edition would have it.

THE music had begun. Loudly, brassy and insistently, but the tune was familiar. Nothing daring or sinister in that! "It's a dumb sort of place," who had sauntered by their table. The new man was young and very handsome, Molly marked. His dark hair grew nicely on a poetic kind of head. He was evidently a person of importance, judging by the interest of the group. All three looked pleased and excited. The proprietor was standing deferentially, talking in a low tone, while the young man regarded him coolly, almost with distaste, Molly decided. Once he smiled, and she saw a flash of white teeth. And once he turned, and his eyes met hers steadily for a moment.

She flushed a little. There were lots of staring people in this place. And she was quite as mannerless, looking at others around her as though they were a new species.

A SIGNIFICANT conversation was taking place between the dark-haired young man and the others at his table.

"What's the reason for getting me into these clothes the minute I get to town?" the young man asked in a low, level tone.

"The same reason that brought you to town, that paid your train fare from Chicago, Neise," Thornton Black, who was known as "Steve" to a small group of "special friends," spoke quietly.

"Oh, the preliminaries. What wedding reception am I to crash tonight?"

"You're wrong this time . . . you start your job right here. What do you think, Neise, the girl walked in tonight! Looks like everything is playing into our hands. You could have knocked me over with a feather when she came through that door. You see, Neise, you're graduating from petty jewel robbery."

The young man took out a cigarette and lit it carefully. "You're not talking to me, Steve. The word kidnapping isn't in my vocabulary, but G-Man is."

"Cool a white liver, Neise? Well, we're a cure for that. It's pretty strong medicine and you ought to have a spend a stretch inside some big house after you take it."

Nelson Ferguson's eyes narrowed. "Somebody else might be keeping me company."

"Here, here!" put in one of the trio, a fat little man with an oily voice. "Is that any way for friends to talk? Neise wants to be urged. He doesn't know what a big piece of pie he'll draw for his share. Only right, too, when he'll be taking the biggest risk. You could never make me believe Neise would scare."

"Not scared," Neise said slowly. "But this is a right pleasant plan I'm living on. A lot of the boys have left it recently."

"Those boys didn't have your brains," Bill Patrick put in. "Tell me which one of your absent friends could have engineered that Dawson deal except you and pulled three straight bank jobs without leaving a Jew. Or made the police of our cities sit up and take notice for nothing. You've got to hand it to yourself. Those boys weren't as smart as you. That's why we sent for you. That's why we're willing to take a small slice if you pull the job."

"What job?" Neise said down. "Know who that girl is I pointed out to you?" Black asked.

"No."

"They call her the Golden Girl."

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT 23

An Amendment to Provide For an Extension of Homesteads From Certain State Taxes

Section 1. The homestead of each and every resident of the state, whether or not such resident be married or unmarried, male or female, shall be wholly exempt from all state taxes, except as provided in Section 8 of Article XVI of the Constitution of Arkansas in all cases where such homestead does not exceed the assessed valuation of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00). Where the assessed valuation of such homestead exceeds One Thousand ($1,000.00) this exemption shall apply to the first One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) of such valuation.

Section 2. Within a maximum limit of Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($2,500.00) and a minimum limit of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) the legislature is hereby authorized and empowered from time to time to fix the amount of the exemption hereby provided.

Section 3. It is hereby made the duty of the legislature, and the legislature is hereby directed:

(a) Fully and completely to replace or to amend all laws, rules, regulations or otherwise affecting hereby or hereunder; but the legislature shall not, in order to accomplish that purpose, impose or levy any new form of tax;

(b) To enact, without unnecessary delay, all legislation necessary and sufficient to make this amendment in all respects effective and workable.

Section 4. Nothing herein shall ever be construed, applied or administered so as to impair any right of any holder of any bond, note or other obligation heretofore issued or assumed by the state and now outstanding; but this amendment shall in every respect be construed, applied and administered so as fully to protect all the legal rights of all such holders.

Section 5. After the date of the passage of this amendment, and before the legislature shall have fulfilled the requirements of section three hereof, this amendment or any legislation enacted in pursuance of section 2, shall be in full force and effect.

Initiative petitions for the above proposed Constitutional Amendment were filed in the office of the Secretary of State on the 30th day of June, 1936.

Witness my hand and official seal of the office of Secretary of State this 9th day of July, 1936.

INITIATED ACT NO. 3

An Act to Amend, Modify and Improve Judicial Procedure and the Criminal Law, and for Other Purposes

"Be It Enacted by the People of the State of Arkansas:

Section 1. PRESERVATION OF TESTIMONY. If any witness fails to enter into the recognizance required by sections 2325 and 2326 of Crawford and Moses' Digest as follows: "I, the undersigned, do hereby certify that from the proceedings had before him or from testimony on oath has reasonable ground to believe that any witness who has entered into such recognizance may nevertheless not appear and testify at the trial of the cause, the witness shall be examined on behalf of the State or the defendant, on application made for that purpose. Such examination shall be preceded by notice to the other party, and shall be by question and answer in the presence of the defendant and the prosecuting attorney or his duly authorized other attorney for the prosecution, with opportunity given for cross-examination, and the testimony given shall be transcribed in writing. The examination shall be conducted in the same manner as other examination of witnesses, except that no preliminary examination is required by law to be conducted, and shall be a part of the preliminary examination. The magistrate, on rendering judgment that the defendant be held to await further proceedings, shall not then dismiss the charges but shall continue to hold the defendant to have continued it, whether or not he has entered a formal order to that effect, and shall retain his jurisdiction over the case, for the purpose set out in this section only, until the case is acted upon by the court. If the magistrate orders that he releases any defendant on bond to await further proceedings, shall require as a condition in such bond, in addition to other conditions required by law, that the defendant appear before the magistrate for further proceedings. The preliminary examination at any time that he may be lawfully summoned so to appear, the bond to be forfeited for breach of this condition as for breach of other conditions contained therein. The magistrate shall reopen the preliminary examination for the purpose of hearing and preserving the testimony of witnesses, as heretofore provided, on motion of either the State or the defendant, at any time while he still retains jurisdiction of the case.

Section 2. TRANSCRIPT ADMISSIBLE IN EVIDENCE. When a witness is examined as provided in Section 1 of this act, and his testimony taken as provided therein, the transcript of his testimony shall be admitted in evidence upon the trial of the defendant for any offense arising out of the criminal transaction for which he was examined, whether the State or of the defendant, if for any reason the testimony of the witness cannot be obtained at the trial and the court is satisfied that the inability to procure such testimony is not due to the fault of the party offering the transcript in evidence.

Section 3. PERJURY IN THE FIRST DEGREE. Perjury in the first degree is the willful and corrupt swearing, testifying or affirming falsely to any material matter in any cause, matter or proceeding before any court, tribunal, body politic or officer, or any other officer having by law authority to administer oaths, or to any affidavit, deposition or probate authorized by law to be taken before any court, tribunal, body politic or officer.

Section 4. PERJURY IN THE SECOND DEGREE. Perjury in the second degree is the willful and corrupt swearing, testifying or affirming falsely to any material matter in any cause, matter or proceeding before any court, tribunal, body politic or officer, or any other officer having by law authority to administer oaths, or to any affidavit, deposition or probate authorized by law to be taken before any court, tribunal, body politic or officer.

Section 5. GROUND FOR POSTPONEMENT OF SENTENCE. The procedure prescribed in the preceding sections of this act shall also be followed, in so far as it is applicable, in any case in which the insanity of a convicted defendant is alleged as a ground for postponement of the execution of the sentence imposed by the court, or in any case in which the insanity of a convicted defendant is alleged as a ground for postponement of the execution of the sentence imposed by the court, or in any case in which the insanity of a convicted defendant is alleged as a ground for postponement of the execution of the sentence imposed by the court.

Section 6. TESTIMONY AT PRIOR TRIAL. On the trial of any cause, civil or criminal, the properly authenticated transcript of the testimony of any witness, or other evidence, if the testimony of any witness when properly given, which testimony was given in any court at any former trial or examination of the same cause between the same parties or their privies, may be read or admitted in evidence, when the former witness is dead, beyond the jurisdiction of the court, has become insane since the former trial or examination, or when for any reason the former witness may not be available, and also in all cases in which for any reason a former witness refuses to testify, the transcript of the testimony which he formerly testified. But no such transcript of testimony, nor proof of such testimony, may be admitted on behalf of either party in a criminal case unless it is first shown that the party against whom it is sought to be admitted is the defendant, and that the transcript of the testimony of the witness when properly given, which testimony was given in any court at any former trial or examination of the same cause between the same parties or their privies, may be read or admitted in evidence, when the former witness is dead, beyond the jurisdiction of the court, has become insane since the former trial or examination, or when for any reason the former witness may not be available, and also in all cases in which for any reason a former witness refuses to testify, the transcript of the testimony which he formerly testified. But no such transcript of testimony, nor proof of such testimony, may be admitted on behalf of either party in a criminal case unless it is first shown that the party against whom it is sought to be admitted is the defendant, and that the transcript of the testimony of the witness when properly given, which testimony was given in any court at any former trial or examination of the same cause between the same parties or their privies, may be read or admitted in evidence, when the former witness is dead, beyond the jurisdiction of the court, has become insane since the former trial or examination, or when for any reason the former witness may not be available, and also in all cases in which for any reason a former witness refuses to testify, the transcript of the testimony which he formerly testified. But no such transcript of testimony, nor proof of such testimony, may be admitted on behalf of either party in a criminal case unless it is first shown that the party against whom it is sought to be admitted is the defendant, and that the transcript of the testimony of the witness when properly given, which testimony was given in any court at any former trial or examination of the same cause between the same parties or their privies, may be read or admitted in evidence, when the former witness is dead, beyond the jurisdiction of the court, has become insane since the former trial or examination, or when for any reason the former witness may not be available, and also in all cases in which for any reason a former witness refuses to testify, the transcript of the testimony which he formerly testified. But no such transcript of testimony, nor proof of such testimony, may be admitted on behalf of either party in a criminal case unless it is first shown that the party against whom it is sought to be admitted is the defendant, and that the transcript of the testimony of the witness when properly given, which testimony was given in any court at any former trial or examination of the same cause between the same parties or their privies, may be read or admitted in evidence, when the former witness is dead, beyond the jurisdiction of the court, has become insane since the former trial or examination, or when for any reason the former witness may not be available, and also in all cases in which for any reason a former witness refuses to testify, the transcript of the testimony which he formerly testified. But no such transcript of testimony, nor proof of such testimony, may be admitted on behalf of either party in a criminal case unless it is first shown that the party against whom it is sought to be admitted is the defendant, and that the transcript of the testimony of the witness when properly given, which testimony was given in any court at any former trial or examination of the same cause between the same parties or their privies, may be read or admitted in evidence, when the former witness is dead, beyond the jurisdiction of the court, has become insane since the former trial or examination, or when for any reason the former witness may not be available, and also in all cases in which for any reason a former witness refuses to testify, the transcript of the testimony which he formerly testified. Harvest Last Crop on Dam Peninsula

Another Season the Waters Will Have Risen at Norris Dam

NORRIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Norris Peninsula farmers, surveying good crops while others in the section are stunted by drought, glance regretfully at the calendar.

It is their last year on the strip lying between Clinch and Powell rivers and cut off from adjacent lands by water impounded behind gigantic Norris dam.

Crops on the peninsula, if anything, have been "water logged" despite the drought, because of the rising waters.

Best Industrial Month Since 1929

July Reflects Advancing Trend for Everything Except Steel

By the Associated Press
Industrial activity in July was the best for that month since 1929. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index averaged 93.8, compared with 90.4 in June and 13.0 in the same period a year ago.

All groups in the index shared the advancing trend. Although the summer months ordinarily see a slowing up of activity, the tempo as the year passed into its final half increased rather than slackened.

Automobile production, residential building, cotton manufacturing, and freight carloadings made new tops for the year or longer.

The only major index that did not surge through old levels in the month was steel mill operations. This is due to the fact that operations in June were sharply expanded to meet the demands occasioned by the price increase of finished products. In each of the past three weeks, however, this index has rallied.

A new soldering "iron" is a "pistol." When the trigger is pulled, the "pistol" releases molten solder, instead of bullets.

Loyalists Battle to Crush Spanish Rebellion

"Playthings"

Spanish civilians, mustered in by the government to quell the Fascist rebellion, gingerly inspect their new "playthings," rifles issued for the defense of Madrid from the northwest.

Police to Front

For the battle in the mountains, on which hangs the fate of the rebellion, even civil police of Madrid have been called to the colors. Throughout severe guerrilla fighting, the police have worn their distinctive hats.

Fists in Salute

Young government soldiers, some of them not out of their teens, salute with clenched fists as they march in groups through Madrid streets to mountains to reinforce older comrades already entrenched there.

Call for Tanks

A government tank shifted the tide of a fierce street battle in Toledo, southern key to Madrid. Machine gunners in the tank and snipers riding the flanks of the "war horse" quickly repulsed surprised rebels.

Midwest Area Is Invaded by Grubs

So Far They Are Attacking Only the Corn and Barley Crops

AMES, Ia.—(AP)—Floyd Andre, Iowa State college entomologist, warned of a destructive infestation of white grubs in Iowa this year as well as in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. "These grubs," he declared, "will cause damage in practically every Iowa county before the summer is over. Already 40 acres of corn in Lucas county have been reported hard hit. But so far corn and barley apparently are the only farm crops damaged by the grubs in this state."

Andre now is experimenting with different poisons in an effort to discover an effective way of killing the underground pests. Certain poisons such as lead arsenate, he said, are known to be destructive to the grubs, but they also frequently damage the plants for which protection is sought.

Stop for a Chat; Fire Burns Up Haystack, Cars

EDEN, Texas.—(AP)—Toll for a social chat—two automobiles and a haystack.

Raymond Whitson stopped to see Leonard Guice, who was working on a haystack. His auto backfired and ignited the hay. When Guice hitched his car to Whitson's to pull it away both automobiles as well as the haystack were destroyed.

It is thought that efforts to reduce the air resistance to planes eventually will result in placing the motors completely within the wings.

The greasy mud will leave a stain that spreads if not promptly removed by experts.

Spanky Rates Live Stand-In

A dummy once was used as Spanky McFarland's "stand-in." But now Spanky is a star, and accordingly, he rates a real, live stand-in. He's Joe Strach, of Chicago, who looks very much like the famous little actor. Here are all three—Joe, at top, the discarded dummy, and Spanky.

Roosevelt Visits

the president said: "We want to keep you from facing those dangers again, and the federal government, so long as I have anything to do with it, is going to co-operate with your communities and your state to do everything possible to prevent floods."

Ascertaining he intended to make other such inspections, the president added he believed he could "render a better service if I see things at first hand than if I just remain in Washington."

Accompanying Mr. Roosevelt were Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania, who joined the party at Johnstown and Maj.-Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of army engineers.

From Johnstown, the president plans to go to Cleveland and the Great Lakes exposition, then swing back into Pennsylvania and New York state for a further survey of regions devastated by floods.

California Keeps Ban Against Prairie Dogs

BLTYHE, Calif.—(AP)—Los Angeles has lifted its police blockade against indigents at the state line, but California's ban on prairie dogs still holds. Perry McCart, of Phoenix, Ariz., was fined $10 here the other day for attempting to bring three prairie dogs through the Blythe quarantine station. State officials claim the rodents are not native to California.
